Value Cycle of Launch a FOMO Model Token

Flock.io

Flock.io

Lever	Score effect	Notes
API spend on MT	Multiplies factor by usage share	Linear: spend splitting does not increase combined base score
Stake on MT	Lifts factor from α toward 1.0: $\alpha + (1 - \alpha) \cdot \sqrt{\text{stake share}}$	α is expected to start around 0.9 and step down toward 0.5
gmFLOCK balance	Multiplies score on every MT by $1 + \lambda \times G$	Log-scale; no need to be a whale
MT incentive vintage	Bigger pool while incentive is fresh	Time-limited (~180 days per MT)

With early-stage $\alpha = 0.9$, staking helps, but only a little:

	usage share	staking factor	combined $\text{factor} \times \text{usage}$
Alice	0.5	$0.9 + 0.1 \cdot \sqrt{1} = 1.000$	$1.000 \times 0.5 = 0.500$
Bob	0.5	$\alpha = 0.900$	$0.900 \times 0.5 = 0.450$

Alice earns $0.500 / (0.500 + 0.450) \approx \mathbf{52.6 \text{ FLOCK}}$. Bob earns 47.4 FLOCK.

If Alice held only 10% of the MT's total stake, her factor would be $0.9 + 0.1 \cdot \sqrt{0.1} \approx 0.932$. With equal usage, she would earn roughly 50.9 FLOCK vs. Bob's 49.1 FLOCK. That is intentional: early rewards are not meant to heavily favor people who were already staked.

With mature-stage $\alpha = 0.5$, staking has a much stronger effect:

	usage share	staking factor	combined $\text{factor} \times \text{usage}$
Alice	0.5	$0.5 + 0.5 \cdot \sqrt{1} = 1.000$	$1.000 \times 0.5 = 0.500$
Bob	0.5	$\alpha = 0.500$	$0.500 \times 0.5 = 0.250$

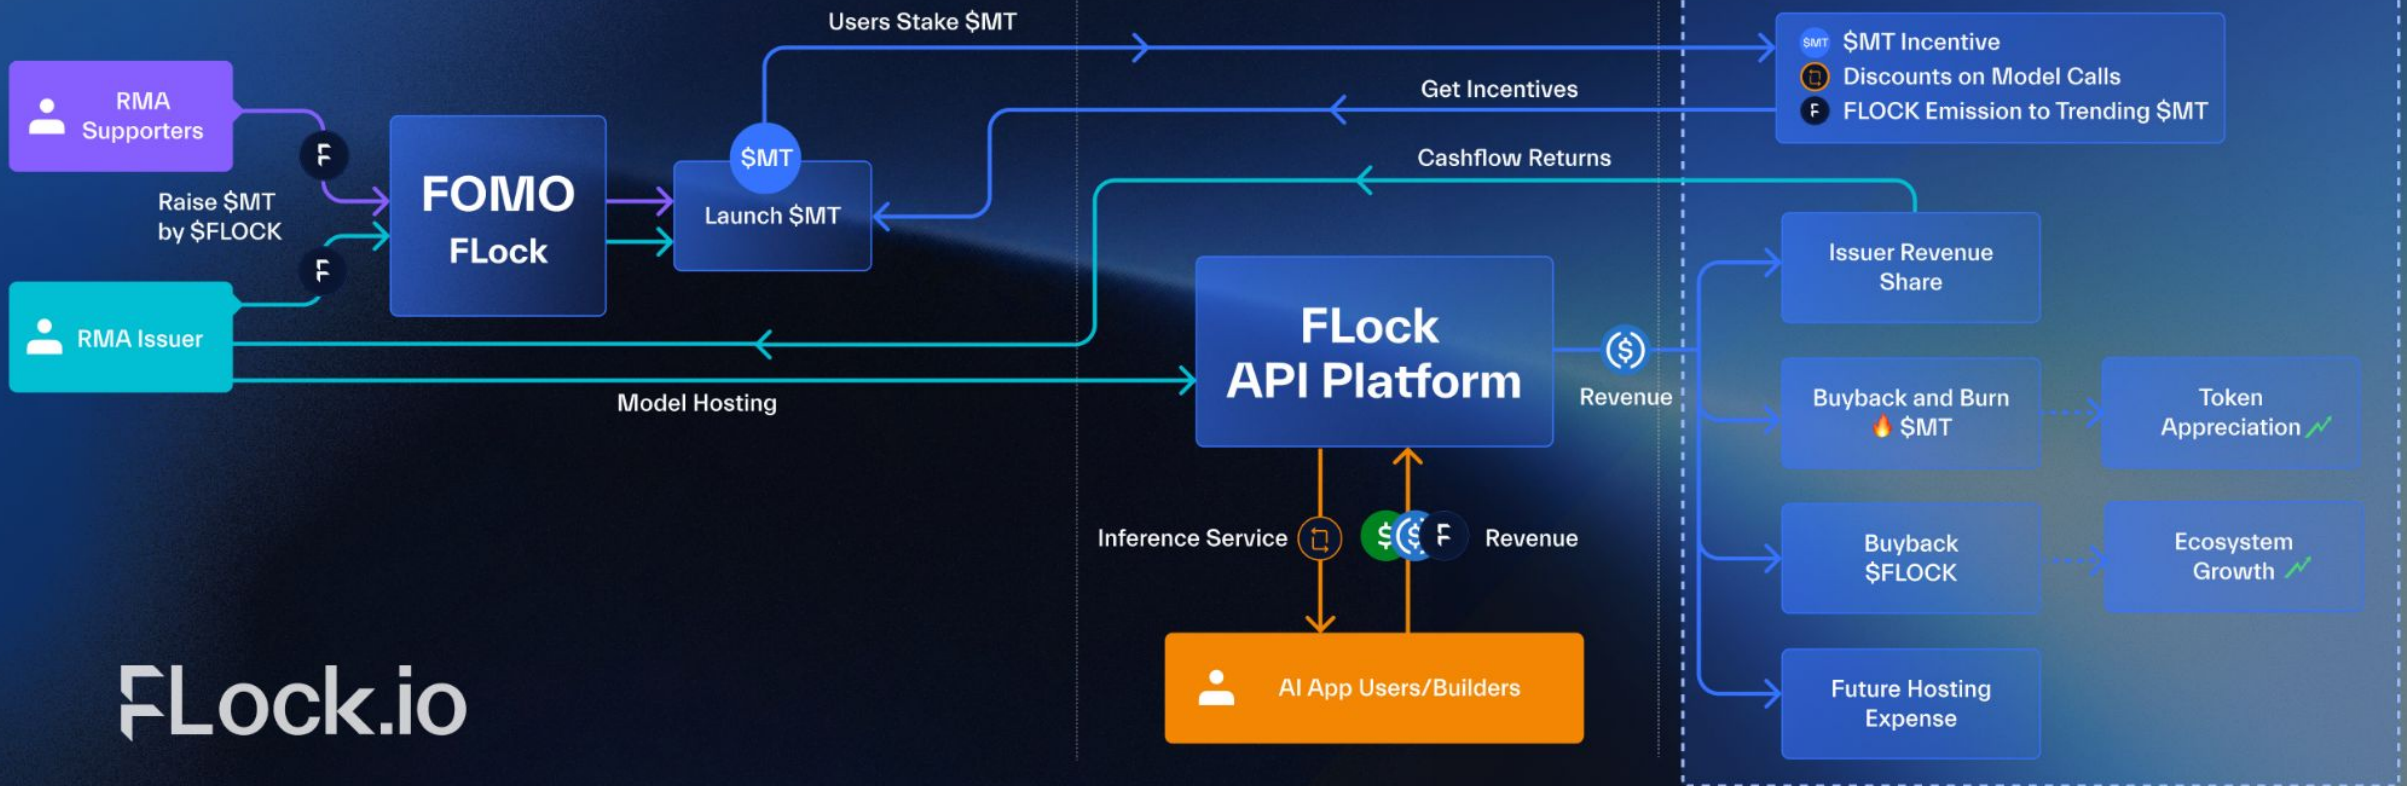

Alice earns $0.500 / (0.500 + 0.250) \approx \mathbf{66.7 \text{ FLOCK}}$. Bob earns 33.3 FLOCK.
